End of McCarthyism

THE STATE OF WISCONSIN I will shortly hold an election to choose, a new member of the United States Senate. But to the outside world this poll will be less important as an election than as a funeral. It will mark the burial of an idea called

When the late Senator Joseph McCarthy died the electors of Wisconsin, who had sent him to the Senate, did not attempt to find a successor of the same mind. On the contrary, they made sure that no second McCarthy would go to Washington.

The Republican Party of Wisconsin, McCarthy's party, held a primary election a few days ago to choose a candidate. (In many American states candidates are thus nominated by public vote and not by provided the properties of the control of the contro party conventions.) No Republican who echoed the dead senator's views received any serious consideration from the Republican voters.

Instead they even rejected Mr. Glenn Davis, not because he was an apostle of McCarthyism, but because e was a conservative critical of President Eisenhower's liberal foreign policies. Mr. Walter Kohler, a strong supporter of the President and a man of progressive viewpoint, was chosen as the Republican candidate.

At the approaching Senate by-election the contest between Mr. Kohler and Mr. Proxmire, the Democratic candidate, will be interesting as a test of the Eisenhower Governstrength in a Republican state, the first important test since last autumn's national election.

But far more interesting to the United States' friends abroad is the fact that McCarthyism is no longer a serious factor even in its birth-

Though American democracy was overawed only a few years ago by an adventurer who dared to challenge not only the Senate but the Presidency itself, that menace passed on the day when the Senate voted to condemn the senator from Wis-His prestige never recovered from that blow.

The outside world which frequently is alarmed by the surface, movements and casual sounds of Washington should remember these events. If should understand the meaning of the election in Wisconsin McCarthyism began and is now ended.

THE QUESTION OF DEDICAting the Beaver - Elk Lake area for park purposes now threatens to hold up final arrangements for local centennial projects.

Under the proposal now agreed to by Victoria and the three municipalities, all parties would combine in building an Art Gallery Centennial wing, and in addition joint funds would be expended on development of Gorge Park and Beaver - Elk property It must have been evident from beginning of discussions that before provincial authorities would spend money on development they would want some guarantee that Beaver-Elk Lake would remain a The property at present is owned by the city, although lying within Saanich boundaries,

For the point to be brought up at this date as a new problem for settlement — and indeed it threatens whole centennial project as now laboriously thrashed out — is taxing public patience beyond measure. At the first indication that the Beaver-Elk Lake Park would win agreement as a project, efforts obviously should have been undertaken to clear the

Another Heroic Effort

VICTORIA HAS PAID ITS TRIBute to the young lady from San Francisco, Miss Myra who proved her courage, ability and stamina by swimming almost across the Strait of Juan de Fuca in 161/2

This is another prodigy of endurthe performer was relatively slight—134 pounds—in contrast to some of the male aspirants who fared less successfully

Those familiar with the waters will understand fully what the young woman accomplished, fighting the extreme cold and outdistancing many excellent marathon swimmers. Only the tide prevented her from reaching the goal on the far shore.

As on other occasions, the swim, popularized by Miss Florence Chadwick under Times-Bapco sponsorship demand. More people want in than there three years ago, has won for Victoria widespread publicity. That was one ick under Times-Bapco sponsorship widespread publicity. That was one of the objectives set by this news paper when it pioneered recent chan-

Hitting the Faulty Driver

A FTER WELL-PUBLICIZED warnings, Victoria police have cracked down on drivers, juvenile and adult, who have been breaking the law in town. The authorities have further stated that this is not e-shot drive against offenders. It will be maintained.

So it should. This year so far nine people have lost their lives in driving accidents in Greater Victoria, three of them during the month of July. This rate of death is approximately the same as last year. While we have statistics like that, there is no occasion for either leniency or complacency.

It would be highly improper, of course, to convert the current campaign for safer driving into a fine-raising drive for the city. The aver-age driver should not be made the, victim of every possible technicality to swell civic funds. But wherever an offence carries danger or irrita-tion to the public in general, then the person who commits it should have his or her delinquency brought sharply home. The objective is the avoidance of accidents and nuisance to law-abiding citizens. As long as that aim is maintained, the police will have the public's support in large measure.

'Prince Valiant'

FORMER U.S. PRESIDENTIAL candidate Adlai Stevenson, who made the term "egg-head" an accolade, has presented the best defence so far for the Queen against her

"I have seen Lord Altrincham's remarks attacking the Queen," said Mr. Stevenson. "I would like to say I have met her and find her charming, most entertaining, very beautiful, quite lovely, extremely perceptive and possessor of a delightful way of speaking."

the result of popularity-people want their place in the sun for residence or vacationing. And it's partly the accom-paniment of increasing industrializationand payrolls.

Few people will shake a disapproving finger at the latter. But you can't help feeling that somewhere in the shuffle the real owners of the Island have lost out. Possession has slipped out of their hands. Now they must pay to camp out; now they must appear as guests at what should be their own feast. Progress, like any other tangible or intangible commodity, has a price. And it is being paid.

The communities that used to dot the highway now sprawl along it. Parksville has blossomed into two streets in place of the slight widering of the main road it used to be. Qualicum is a shack town that lines the highway, a mixture of posh juke boxes spill rock and roll blatancy to the suffering sands.

Too Much Speed

The terrible tragedy that struck the city approximately a week ago, followed by another pile-up of teenagers, prompts me to take up pen when our Mayor Scurrah, also Chief Blackstock, threaten to throw the book at any future offenders, when caught.

As I see it, gathered from the evidence at the inquest a constable mentioned the boys leaving the police car when travelling at 100 miles an hour. Considering the police were fully cognizant of what loomed ahead at south end of Cook, I would presume police siren would be blaring its sage, further agitating the boys ahead, and if so, little tact was used. In plain common sense do we require such excessive speeds as being necessary or desirable in the best in terests of safety for others, too.

B.C. with its mountain grades, sharp curves, heavy traffic combined with wintry conditions of ice and snow at high altitudes is a good place for such crusade to start.

Statue of Christ

As the originators of the current suggestion that the figure of Christ be chosen as the Centennial statue, kindly allow us to offer our sincere appreciation to the many people throughout this province who have expressed their whole-hearted support for the proposal. Typical of the comments we have received is a letter dated July 22 which states "... having read of your fine suggestion re Centennial statue, my family and I whole heartedly agree with your idea. It is unfortunate that so little is done to openly declare faith in the Supreme Being in this Western civilization, and surely every parent and child in B.C. will gladly and most willingly support this plan which is by far the best vet submitted.

Of modifications offered to our original plan, we feel that the person who proposed that the figure of Christ be erected upon Mount Douglas or at the (highway) summit of the Malahat, mediately overlooking Finlayson Arm (where power for illumination is already available) and that around the concrete base all phases of B.C.'s life and history (the prospector, logger, schoolma'am, Sir James Douglas, etc., etc.) be depicted in relief, has co-ordi-nated every idea submitted for this project to perfection.

The shock that most of the electorate Canada have experienced regarding the actions of the new—or apparently so—federal government before calling Par liament, is merely a continuation of the persistent erosion of the latter in the interest of an overpowering force at work against all democratic governments the

This it would seem has happened to Canada because we are now faced with the secretary of state of the U.S. of America speaking for-or on behalf-of Canada at the London conferences. Any doubts of that power has now been removed by the fact that through the amalgamation or merger of our Canadian forces with those of the U.S.A., and what is more, under their command, has reduced this country of Canada to that of a satellite of the latter foreign country merely by the sweeping assertion that North America—of which Canada is the greater part—will be thrown open to aerial inspection from Russia and the United States of America alike.

The cold war threats—the synthetic peaceful penetration of countries, all dressed in the garb of fear—are all stage props in the lust for world control, but the choice of its headquarters is being frantically fought for—behind the scenes

In sequence with the foregoing it does not require a political magnifying glass to read the small print running through Hansard in recent years as to why the Canadian people are unable to get any satisfaction as to their own flag and

Control of Money Supply

I read with a great deal of interest, the article by Charles A. Bowman entitled "Policy on Money" and your editorial in reply in Friday's Times.

You state that the Liberal government had such a policy when it acted to limit the volume of money. In wever when the government issues new honey it automatically finds its way into our commercial banks increasing their recommercial banks increasing their recommercial banks increasing their reserves. This is, in the banker's phrase "high powered money" for it can be translated by the banks roughly by six times the amount of new reserves. Thus $1,000,000 issued by the government can become $6,000,000 of new money.

Under these circumstances what con-trol can the government exert on the country's real money supply? To my mind hardly anything at all.
"ACCOUNTANT"

By Example

With an all hail for those "hopes" of the future, our teenagers, I humbly submit this indicative rhyme:

This I mean, and this I think and this I have to say,
That I respect teenagers, more than adults, any day.
They have their youth, adventurous thoughts, and many things

And arrogance, self-righteousness and egotists they spurn.
A little good example is a deed that they respect, And kindness, not dictatorship, is something they expect.

So if adults changed from arrogance

'Lhude Sing Cuccu'

Topics of the Times in the New York Times

In summer heat even cold, hard logic the faux pas which has sent him seems to melt as easily as ice cubes, We surrender ourselves passively to cooling drinks and illusion. The talented monk at Reading Abbey, not yet authentically identified, to whom are attributed the care-free lines, "Sumer is icumen in/ Lhude sing cuccu," must have noticed this state of mind.

We put aside regular tasks, familiar routines and common sense along with our furs, tweeds and overcoats in moth-balls. We take a vacation from reality, living in a trance, prey to emotions that express themselves in curious ways. For that reason Shakespeare set one of his most fantastic comedies in a mythical most fantastic contentes in a mythical court during the lazy days and nights of midsummer. As one impossible incident succeeds another in the play Puck renders impromptu judgment, "What fools these mortals be!",

Picture any summer resort where people in considerable numbers keep coming and going. One enters this kind of place from the disadvantage point of close scrutiny. Observers on porch, lawns, in dining rooms or anywhere else on the premises act as a committee on admissions and rejections.

Status of the newcomer, based on superficial evidence of clothes, posture, manners, speech, is hurriedly decided. He or she is catalogued with the speed of an expert entomologist classifying a butterfly among other lepidoptera.

New Low

When there is much time at one's disposal and prolonged leisure during which chatting or just standing around becomes a principal occupation anything can happen and does. One's sensitivity quotient, for instance, the capacity for becoming offended, for considering or self slightly ignored, discriminated against, hits a new low.

Remarks that in the workaday world are written off as silly linger in the subconscious until a hostile mood is established. Usually the party of the offending part is not even aware of tumbling to the bargain basement. The very next day under altered circumstances—perhaps the carping commenta-tor of yesterday has said something gracious—the sun shines again as before in a cloudless sky. Self-preservation also takes the form of cliques whose very existence is armor against being ignored at one's own level of self-esteem. Cocktail parties, bridge games and golf sorties become indices of inclusion and exclusion. A philosophic guest from his pin-nacle of survey looks on, smiles and re-peats Puck's comprehensive dictum inless of course the philosopher too is humanly vulnerable in the heat haze.

Quick Action

The deck of a passenger ship has a way of telescoping time. Life-long friendships, so it seems, mushroom into existence within a few hours at a ship's railing, in the course of a dance, during a tete-a-tete across adjoining steamer chairs.

Because the dramatis personae operate on a circumscribed stage an illusion of intimacy is quickly created, which may deceive some but never the experienced traveler. She knows and he understands that the whispered comment by moonlight despite its emotional overtones denotes fleeting relationship. But it serves its purpose, opens recesses of the mind kept closed in the ordinary give and take of a business day, acts as an exhilarating stimulant, creates a sense well-being in both speaker and

There are two candidates for the Presidency of the Twelfth General Assembly, which opens here on Sept. 17. Both are skilled diplomats, and both are popular ones, though both are more forceful in their outlooks and their utterances than Prince Wan would ever dream of being.

The favorite in the contest for the Presidency is Sir Leslie Munro of New Zealand, and his opponent the foreign minister of the Lebanon, Dr. Charles Malik. Sir Leslie, a big, bluff man of keen intelligence, has been assured of the support of many Commonwealth nations, most of the nations of Western Europe, and of the United States—and American support is expected to bring with it the majority of the 20-nation Latin American group. What the Asian and African members of the commonwealth will do, in view of Dr. Malik's candidacy, remains to be seen. The Lebanese delegation has an-nounced that it is counting on the overwhelm-ing support of the Asian-African group "and many friendly countries."

Diplomats expect Sir Leslie to be success ful, though there is little likelihood that he will win on one ballot, or that the final ballot will be unanimous.

The fact that Sir Leslie is being opposed The fact that Sir Leslie is being opposed in his bid for the Assembly presidency, an office occupied in 1952 by Mr. Lester B. Pearson of Canada, is due in part to the attitude shown by New Zealand in the Middle Eastern crisis of last November. At that time New Zealand, along with Australia, voted with the United Kingdom, while all the rest of the United Kingdom, while all the rest of the Assembly, saving only France and Israel, voted against or else abstained.

The bitterness of those days has passed, but many Arab and Asian nations remember, and are unwilling to concede the presidency of the assembly to New Zealand without a fight.

Farmers Romp To 18-3 Win Over Burnaby

Farmer Construction went all out in their Northwest International Baseball League game Tuesday night as they downed Burnaby Athletics 18-3 at Royal Athletic Park.
Only two of the 11 Victoria

A big seventh inning did mos of the damage as Farmers rammed home 11 runs against a pair of reliefers, Gary Ball and Ed Ledlin.

Dave Emery, 16-year-old Vic-toria right hander, opened on the mound and gave up all three of Burnaby's runs. They came in the opening frame on a walk, double, triple and sac-

OUTDOOR REPORT Doug Peden On Business

Many prospective bird hunters worry about correct barrel length when they look over the gun racks to select their first shotgun.

If they have been talking to grandpa, and hearing how those old, extra-long smokepoles knocked down birds at tremendous ranges, they may hold out for long barrels.

Although distances have probably grown with the years, such barrels were needed back in the days of black powder. when only part of the powder was burned in even 40 inches of barrel. But times have changed. The powders used today of barrel. But times have changed. The powders used today burn in from 16 to 22 inches and long barrels bring no appreciable advantage in killing power.

Short barrels—under 25 inches—have a greater muzzle blast and recoil more than those of 26 inches and up. But with a pump or automatic, there is no need for tubes above 26 inches, they will deliver a killing wallop just as far as long barrels. Tests have long ago established that the only difference between 26 and 32 inch barrels is a gain of about seven feet per second for each additional inch—less than the seven feet per second for each additional inch—less than the Variation between shells from the same box.

Long barrels may allow for more careful aiming when used on ducks, where the shooting is often deliberate. But they won't handle as well for quick work on grouse or pheasants. Unless he can afford more than one gun, the beginner could do worse than leave any gun with barrels above 30 inches to the experts.

If buying a pump or automatic, he might give consideration to one of the choke-control devices that can be attached to the muzzle. All of them work as claimed and have a two-fold advantage. They can be adjusted for either a tight or open shot pattern or anything in between, and one of the devices sitting conspicuously on the muzzle can help in pointing the weapon more accurately.

Some of those ultra-light jobs that feel so handy in the some of those ultra-light jobs that feel so handy in the store-can also bear watching. Some models will belt you right on the button when you shoot them and eventually develop flinching—the curse of the scattergunner who has shot too light a gun or too many heavy loads.

It appears that many sportsmen are riled over the switch in game regulations which will allow each hunter to take two antierless deer this season.

If they still express the same views Monday, the Victoria Fish and Game Protective Association's general meeting at Goldstream could be an interesting affair, since game biologist Don Robinson is scheduled to be the guest speaker.

Ted Barsby, president of the B.C. sportsmen's association will make a report on the access situation on Vancouver Island. It is rumored that one of the Island's major logging companies will allow public access while another will keep its gates closed during the shooting season.

Both members and non-members are invited to attend the session, which starts at 8 and will include two half-hou outdoor films.

For those wanting to get in a little pre-season shooting practice, there will be trap and small-bore rifle shooting at the game club's Goldstream clubhouse prior to Monday's meeting, starting at 6.30.

The VFGPA will also hold a merchandise trap shoot August 25. Victoria Gun Club has a combined skeet and trap trophy shoot scheduled this Sunday and will stage a pre-season practice shoot August 25.

Dr. Dave Turner, deputy minister of the department of recreation and conservation, will be the guest speaker at a special events program at the South Vancouver Island Rangers' clubhouse Friday at 8.15 p.m. The Rangers and their guests will watch two excellent films—"Spying on New Hampshire Wildlife" and "Legends of the West"... the Rangers, incidentally, will host game club marksmen in a challenge, small-bore shoot this month. Jim Oliver and Eddie Allen are doing their best to boost fishing tackle sales. Both reently watched a complete outfit splash into the salt chuck when a salmon hit. Oliver was operating in Saanich Inlet while Allen, who saw his rod holder follow the rod and reel overboard, was fishing off Qualicum . . . tried to fool some of those salmon off Trial Island Monday evening and finished on the short end of the family fishing derby. Trudy hauled in two coho before one finally hit my Strip Teaser. Each of the three fish hit the scales around seven pounds.

Of the reunion with Mortson, Thomson said:

SPIDER WEBB FIGHTS CHARLE Y JOSEPHS AT 7 ON CHANNEL 5

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor.

AS A TWO-BIT PISTOL—There are many motion picture stars who can thank TV for a resurgence in their careers, but none is hotter right now than that pint-sized bundle of nuclear fission known as Mickey Following his juvenile (seemingly perpetual) days in the Andy Hardy series and others the boy blunder fell on times as lean as a moth's in an igloo. Later, within on times as iean as a motirs in an igloo. Later, within the past four or five years, he did manage to get roles, such as in "The Bridges of Tokori" and "The Bold and the Brave" but they were few and far between.

Then came TV and his tremendous performance in Playhouse 90's "The Comediah" and, a few weeks later, the title role in "Mr. Broadway," a spectacular covering the life of showman George M. Cohan.

The Mick was flying again, higher even than a boy ld fly. But it looks as though the Hollywood updraft has just begun. Now he is going to be starred as a cold-blooded baby-faced killer in a play based on the life of starts selling shoes, a complete switch which he begins one of America's most infamous gangsters of the 1930s, to like even though his wife doesn't.

As far as interest work directors are concerned his phone number gives off the mark ability. ring with the box office zing. He is due for another Playhouse 90 soon, the big screen Baby Face Nelson role and it is understood that he is billed to play Sammy Glick, the central character in Bud Schulberg's bristling Hollywood expose, "What Makes Sammy Run?" How hot can you get?
